Learn about local services to help your company enter or expand in global markets!

Globalization is a word that has diverse meanings. From a business perspective it means selling products and services in a fiercely competitive environment that can mean the difference between company growth and profits or extinction. The challenges of global marketing can be easier to handle with a little help, and the City of Washington, in cooperation with the Department of Economic Development, Business Development & Trade Division, is sponsoring an export outreach event to bring international trade professionals from various disciplines to your doorstep. To learn more about the services provided by the various trade specialist organizations, please register for this informative event.

Featured Speakers:

- Bronwen Madden - International Trade Manager,
Missouri Department of Economic Development
- Chris Poli - International Trade Specialist,
